OUR MISSION

To nurture environmentally healthy and culturally vibrant communities in metropolitan Detroit and support initiatives to restore the Great Lakes Basin
I am pleased to present our family foundation’s second annual report, describing new grants approved as well as initial results of earlier grants.

The Foundation approved $4.8 million in grants in Fiscal Year 2011 and paid $4.6 million. Subsequent grants (through December 2011, the first half of FY2012) bring total grants approved since our inception to $15.4 million and grants paid since inception to $13.6 million.

Over one-half of our grants support efforts within the City of Detroit, two grants benefit the Bayfield watershed in Ontario Canada, eight grants promote state wide or national policy change and research (with the three largest of those grants focused on the Great Lakes Basin). The rest of our grants cover the metro Detroit area of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties and the major watersheds impacting that region — the Clinton, Detroit, Huron, and Rouge Rivers and Lake St. Clair.

Our goals are to improve water quality, promote environmental health and justice and support the arts in order to help revitalize the region. We also support leading Alzheimer’s research.

While these are long-term goals and it is difficult to attribute outcomes to a single funding source, we are attempting to measure whether our grants are helping to make a difference. The following are just a sampling of some of the accomplishments over the past year that we feel can be attributed in whole or in part to our grants:

- Improved Water Quality. $325 million was authorized for the second year of the federal Great Lakes Restoration Initiative, bringing total GLRI funding to $775 million over 2 years, $16.5 million of which will benefit Metro Detroit watersheds. Detailed GIS maps of human stressors to the five Great Lakes were developed to help guide and track future restoration work. Public awareness of Great Lakes issues grew as Detroit Public Television provided award winning live and on-demand coverage of Great Lakes Week in Detroit with over 120,000 people in Michigan and thousands more in 48 other states and 15 other countries tuning in.

- Environmental Health and Justice. Southeast Michigan Hospitals are now prioritizing locally and sustainably grown food.

- Community Arts. The Heidelberg Project’s annual budget doubled with an annual economic impact in Wayne County of about $3.4 million.

We partner with other foundations where possible, sharing funding for the Healing Our Waters Coalition, Michigan Cultural Data Project, Fair Food Network’s Double Up Food Bucks Program, LEAP, Detroit Eastern Market’s Community Kitchen, SHAR’s Recovery Park and the Detroit Riverfront Conservancy. A unique partnership with The Kresge Foundation goes even further, including a streamlined, shared application, review and reporting process for culture and arts organizations in and around Detroit.

I continue to be amazed and inspired by the passion and ingenuity of the organizations we support and thank them for their continued good work.

John M. Erb, President
Devoted parents, grandparents and long-time civic leaders, Fred and Barbara Erb’s philanthropy is strongly influenced by their desire to create a better world for both current and future generations.

This desire, together with their successful family business experience, their shared love of the outdoors, and their deep sense of fairness and justice, naturally led them to view their philanthropy through the lens of sustainability—development that harmonizes economic, environmental and social interests while meeting the needs of the present without compromising the needs of the future.

Both Fred and Barbara Erb were born and raised in the Detroit area, where they raised their four children, developed the family business, and have decided to focus their philanthropic legacy.

The day after receiving his BBA degree from the University of Michigan in 1947, Fred bought into his uncle’s lumber and coal business in Royal Oak, Michigan. At that time, the Erb Lumber Company had one store, seven employees, and revenues approaching $170,000. Fred developed the company into a multi-state enterprise, covering 45 locations with 1,300 employees and generating $280 million in sales, before he sold it in 1993. Ever the savvy entrepreneur, Fred didn’t stop there, but continued to develop multiple successful real estate and investment partnerships.

Fred and Barbara brought the same energy and acumen to their philanthropy. Their first major gift, in 1951, was to help establish a camp for troubled children in northern Oakland County, Michigan. Not only did Fred pledge an amount equal to his annual income (at that time $5,000), he and Barbara challenged their business associates, friends and neighbors to give as well, until they had raised gifts totaling more than four times that amount. Motivating and partnering with others became a hallmark of their philanthropy.

In 1996, they made their first major gift to the University of Michigan, with subsequent gifts eventually totaling $20 million, to establish the Erb Institute for Global Sustainable Enterprise. With their concern for a sustainable future, it is not surprising that in 2007 they established a family foundation to institutionalize and perpetuate their philanthropy.

We invite you to explore our website to learn more about the Erb Family and the Foundation’s interests – www.erbff.org.
The Foundation’s Mission is to nurture environmentally healthy and culturally vibrant communities in metropolitan Detroit and support initiatives to restore the Great Lakes Basin.

To help us accomplish our Mission, we have developed Desired Outcomes and identified activities that we will support to help achieve these Outcomes.

Environment: Our overall Desired Outcome is an environmentally healthy City of Detroit, metropolitan Detroit region and Great Lakes Basin. To help achieve this Outcome, we support efforts to improve water quality in the watersheds impacting metropolitan Detroit and Bayfield, Ontario and to promote environmental health and justice.

Culture and Arts: Our overall Desired Outcome is a culturally vibrant City of Detroit and metropolitan Detroit region. To help achieve this Outcome, we support select “anchor” arts organizations, community arts, and jazz education.

The Foundation also initiates grants in the areas of Alzheimer’s Research and other areas that we consider “Special Opportunities.” Sustainability works from the bottom-up and is rooted in the actions and decisions by individuals, nonprofit and profit enterprises, and local communities. Our grants support local grass-roots and community-based organizations as well as larger institutions whose research and expertise helps inform and advance those local efforts.

The Heidelberg Project’s annual budget doubled (from $200,000 to $400,000 from 2009–2011) with an annual economic impact in Wayne County of about $3.4 million including 50,000 annual visitors and the creation of an estimated 40 jobs. (October 2011 study conducted by the Massachusetts based Center for Creative Community Development). Further, according to the study, “The presence of The Heidelberg Project in the McDougall-Hunt neighborhood of Detroit results in benefits to the community and county far beyond its economic impact.”

RIGHT: Tyree Guyton thanks Marcus Belgrave after the inaugural performance of The Heidelberg Suite, a commissioned work composed by Belgrave and Anthony Wilson and performed by the Detroit All Star Jazz Orchestra. The piece was commissioned by the foundation, facilitated by the Arts League of Michigan, and performed at Detroit’s historic First Congregational Church as a farewell tribute to Tyree Guyton as he embarked on a one year residency in Basel, Switzerland.
Community Arts: Our goal is to help revitalize individual neighborhoods and ultimately the City of Detroit and metropolitan Detroit region through cultural activities and public art. We support neighborhood-based culture and arts projects that engage the community in planning, creating and maintaining the project, especially projects that explore the intersection of arts and the environment.

Heidelberg Project, Detroit, MI to help build organizational capacity to develop a cultural village—a sustainably designed, arts-infused, economically vibrant community, $75,000 for year 2 of 2 year $125,000 grant (dollar for dollar match required for $50,000 of $75,000 year two payment) Matrix Theatre Company, Detroit, MI for the Ghostwaters program, an interactive arts project examining Detroit’s water history, its current water problems and their impact on the future, $50,000 for year 2 of 3 year $150,000 grant Southwest Housing Solutions Corporation, Detroit, MI to engage the community and demonstrate artistically and ecologically creative storm water mitigation (low impact development techniques) in renovating a former police station in southwest Detroit into a creative arts center housing 555 Nonprofit Gallery & Studios and Classic Landscape, Ltd, $25,000 for year 2 of 2 year $75,000 grant

Arts Education: Our goal is to provide advanced jazz instruction to musically talented low income youth—a reflection of Fred Erb’s love of jazz and Detroit’s strong jazz history.

Arts League of Michigan, Detroit, MI $50,000 Detroit International Jazz Festival Foundation, Detroit, MI $50,000 Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Detroit, MI $50,000 Michigan State University-CMS Detroit, Detroit, MI $50,000 (plus $10,000 balance due from last year payable when enrollment reached 40 students)
A $25,000 Erb challenge grant motivated the Alzheimer’s Association to raise an additional $250,000 to maintain its traditional support for the Zenith grants program (which Erb also supports with a $1 million, 5-year grant). Research grants had been slated for 20% cuts due to the impact of the economic decline on the program’s endowment and Erb responded with the challenge to avoid those cuts.
Alzheimer’s Research: The Foundation supports leading research regarding the prevention, management & treatment of Alzheimer’s disease.

Alzheimer’s Association, Chicago, IL to support peer-reviewed, donor-directed leading research aimed to understand, prevent, treat and ultimately cure Alzheimer’s disease, $200,000 for 2nd year of 5 year $1 million grant plus $25,000 challenge grant

Special Opportunities: From time to time, the Foundation initiates support for exceptional opportunities that fall outside of its mission.

Detroit Riverfront Conservancy, Inc., Detroit, MI for general operating support with an emphasis on environmental education and public art, $200,000 for 2nd year of 5 year $1 million grant University of Michigan for scholarships for the Erb Institute for Global Sustainable Enterprise, $200,000 challenge grant
